DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 26-82 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fabis in view of Yamazaki et al. Fabis et al teach the claimed subject matter except for showing the plasma as a localized one that is no more than 5 mm from the film surface. Yamazaki et al are applied for teaching that it is beneficial and cost effective to use cvd deposition to form a diamond film, preferably the plasma no more than 5 mm extending outward from the film surface. (See column 3 line 20). In view of this teaching it would have been obvious to modify the Fabis system to include a plasma no more than 5 mm from the film surface, thus attaining the benefit of cost effectiveness. Note that use of a bonding agent as per the dependent claims is taught in the applied patents.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Ikegaya et al, Fujimori et al, Yamamoto et al, GB 340' and nguchi et al are cited for disclosing deposition of diamond films on a substrate.
